CURRENT COMMENTS

HAS COME TO STAY.

There is every probability that the one cent coin has come to stay in the West. Gradually, but surely, the cent is being introduced in the large centres, Lethbridge being one of the latest cities to introduce the little coin; and, no doubt, the smaller places will have to come to it before long. Then, instead of meat and other commodities being 15 cents per lb., and then taking a sudden jump of 5 cents a lb., or per dozen, as the case may be, and so on, 5 cents every rise, the very insignificant little cent will squeeze himself in and insist that the article take a rise of one cent at a time. The one cent piece has many advocates as a remedy against the high cost of living. It has been estimated that something like $60,000 a year would be saved to the consumer in Canada alone, when the cent comes into general use—and it is being introduced into that city, and why should it not be? That is, looking at it from an economical point of view from the consumers standpoint.

REV. OLIVER E. MANN, Pastor.

The Balacala charge will go down to posterity in the lines of "The Charge of the Light Brigade."

Among many other heroes of later days are those noble heroes of the Titanic disaster. And still later is the record left behind of the tragic death of Captain Robert F. Scott and his heroic companions who died in the wilds of the Antarctic.

The searching party who went out to find Capt. Scott and his party, found the record of tabulated happenings day by day by the late explorer, which tells of the privations and sufferings of the noble band of heroes up to the time of their tragic end.

The details are one long string of heroic struggle against fearful odds in addition to the gnawings of hunger and the insatiate cravings of thirst.

But despite the hopeless nature of the outlook forced on them, never relinquished their gallant struggle, but fought on heroically to the bitter end. As recorded in a previous dispatch, the search party found their tent on November 4, 1912. It was covered with their gear was completely covered.

The tent was well spread with an inner tent placed on poles. The bodies having been identified, the inner tent was placed over them and a large cairn of snow was erected and a cross placed on the top, bearing a suitable inscription to the memory of the brave heroes, ending with the words, "The Lord gave and the Lord taketh away. Blessed be the name of the Lord."

Powers of Villages Extended

The British nation last Friday paid its last sad respects to the memory of Captain Robert F. Scott and his heroic companions who died in the wilds of the Antarctic after reaching the south pole.

A great memorial service was held in the cathedral of St. Paul's, in the centre of London. It was attended by people in every walk of life, from King George in the uniform of an admiral of the fleet down to common laborers.

The king, surrounded by a brilliantly uniformed staff, occupied a seat beneath the great dome. The other parts of the cathedral were filled by the general public to the fullest extent of the accommodation. Only a few seats had been reserved for the royal party, which comprised representatives of Queen Mother Alexandra, and of the Duke and Duchess of Connaught.

Promier Asquith, with all the cabinet ministers, was present, as well as many of the foreign ambassadors. Hours before the time set for the singing of the first hymn, "Rock of Ages," the police began regularly to turn away thousands who could not even get within view of the doors of the cathedral.

The service was a simple but solemn one. It concluded with the playing of the "Dead March from Saul," in which the great cathedral organ was accompanied by a military band. The service concluded with the hymn "Jesus Lover of My Soul."

In the closing collects, names of the five dead explorers were included.

The whole service was most impressive. Vast crowds stood uncovered outside the cathedral. A great number of British blue jackets were present, both inside and outside.

In all great crisis recorded in the world's history great heroes have suddenly sprung into being.

laws for will be, raising of revenue and temporary loans, relief of poor, public health scavenging, planting of trees, taking of census, expropriating land for road and streets, public works, such as roads and sidewalks, municipal buildings, fire halls, public scales, parks, regulation of the size and structure of buildings frequented by the public, regulating the manner of sale of bread, making grants to hospitals, destruction of noxious weeds, cemeteries, preventing children being on the streets late at night, licensing picture shows, etc.

Under the Village act of the Northwest territories, picture shows were not included, although theatres and other kinds of shows were, the old act not having contemplated the modern craze for cinematographs.

The law relating to children being on the streets late at night is practically the old curfew law brought up to date.

In a few communities in Alberta the curfew is rung at certain times in the evening, when all children are expected to be indoors. The curfew will, therefore, become more general under the new act, as councillors see the wisdom of helping parents to enforce the "early to bed" rule.

Taxation is limited to 20 mills on the dollar. Villages will have power to levy and collect school taxes in the same way as towns and rural municipalities, since the passing of the Rural Municipalities act. Villages will have a corporate seal and be authorized to hold property. Power to enforce payment of arrears of taxes is widened and, in addition to ordinary method of distress, there will be the right to forfeit lands, and lands so forfeited will become the property of the village municipality. Fines collected for breaches of bylaws will be received by the treasurer of the village and will go into revenue, while reasons for which villages may borrow money are increased.

A village is not authorized to make grants to bonus industries. The village council will sit as a court of revision to decide on admission of names to voters' lists and appeals from the village council may be taken before a judge.

Basis of assessment remains the same. Assessment is based on the value of land without improvements. The right to borrow money can be obtained on submission of a petition, signed by a majority of resident ratepayers and resolutions passed by village council. On receipt of these, permission to borrow the money required will be issued by the minister of municipal affairs.

In the past money bylaw necessitated a two-thirds majority of those voting. While in theory the latter method seemed better, the manner of taking votes on money bylaws in actual practice it is not, because many people take little interest in the passing of money bylaws and neglect to vote.

For the purpose of the act, a village is still defined as twenty-five occupied houses on 640 acres. The head of the council is known as reeve.

Some of the matters that villages will have power, under the new act, to regulate and pass by-

KIDNEY PAINS IN THE BACK

Could Not Stand or Even Turn In Bed

—Legs Greatly Swollen

All Doctor's Medicine Failed—Cure
Effectected by Use of

DR. CHASE'S KIDNEY-LIVER PILLS

Again this great medicine has triumphed over kidney diseases of all sorts and types. From a bed of suffering and helplessness Mrs. Wallie, a housewife, was restored to strength by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

Kidney pains in the back she had seen in and she had no reason to hope for cure since the doctor's medicine failed. She had been told her husband said what the husband says about this remarkable stuff.

Mrs. Thos. O. Walsh, Picton, N.S., writes: "Two years ago my wife took to bed for the first time in her life from kidney pains in the back. She was not able to stand or lie down without pain. No doctor's medicine was no benefit whatever, that we could see. Sometimes she would not even get out of bed. Reading about a woman in similar condition being cured by Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, she sent for boxes and when these were used she was able to sit up. With three more boxes she was able to walk and was doing her own housework."

"As for myself I also found these pills wonderful. For these I give this statement in order that others may obtain the same ease from using Dr. Chase's pills as I experienced by my wife and myself."

High Finance

Why do you keep asking people for change for a dollar and then asking other people to give you a dollar for your expenses?

Well, somebody may make a little take in change sometimes. And, be honest, it can't be me.

Pain Free Before It—There is more virtue in a bottle of Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil as a salve of pain than in any other salve. You can't tell the public how this and there are few households throughout the country who have not used it for many years of use, as familiarized the people with it, and made it a household medicine throughout the western world.

A Bridge of Arms

A species of arms which split skin is common in hot countries. The main test in this is to bind the two together to make them neuter. The silk used for his purpose is not secreted by the body, but is derived from the sea. In order to attach the silken threads and draw the leaves together that the plant may be held from leaf to leaf. When two distant leaves are to be drawn together a remarkable device is used, consisting of six arms forming a chain bridging the gap between the leaves, each gripping the two leaves firmly.

A number of such chains will cooperate in bringing two leaves together.

He didn't. When asked if he had had enough, he said, "No, I haven't. You! You had enough and don't you forget it!"

An All-British Lord Mayor

When I got out of bed this morning I found I was Irish again. I went into the bathroom and used English soap and brush. I then dressed in Scotch tweeds and put on English made boots, and went to breakfast at a place where British food is served. After an hour's communion, everything I eat, drink, and wear comes from the British Isles. A very interesting confession made a few days ago by Sir T. Vezey Strode, Lord Mayor of London, in connection with the movement for an all-British shopping week.

A NEW INVENTION

Safety Appliance is Added to Grand Trunk Train

Of all the difficulties and problems and anxiety which make the head of a railroad official, like him that wears a railroad cap, the most important and of greatest importance than the safety of passengers and the stability of equipment.

A rail road is a highly organized and efficiently managed is a human device and accidents are bound to occur, but the number is minimum.

When accidents do occur, it generally follows that a number of expensive cars are reduced to matchwood. Passengers realize that the accident is not telescoping, but few of them know that telescoping is due to the fact that the truck is loose and the body is loose. The trucks and is unconnected with it save for a two inch pin of negligible value.

Were it possible to make a solid unit of body and truck the problem would open up and the trouble solved. This however cannot be done for the one must be readily removable from the other. How then to make them detachable at need and yet remain attached at all times?

It is proposed to have the truck was ever simpler. Only five bolts castings. So complicated a frame may be required to hold the body to the truck or work or wrongly used. When assembled the device resembles nothing, the body being suspended from the truck by means of a vertical support, and held together by easily removed vertical pins.

The force of the impact stops the trucks of each car but since the object that has caused the impact is still in motion and the bodies have a tendency to follow them; while the sudden application of the brakes to the truck causes the bodies to move, these last being held in position by the vertical supports from their normal position upon the trucks.

The impact strikes the platforms of trucks and the body is stopped. It is believed even the danger of telescoping would be small but when the bodies have stopped the truck is still in motion, in other, its platform climbs upon the lower platform and the two bodies meet.

It is evident that some force must be applied to counteract the movement of the body, but the only force available has never been taken advantage of—brake force which acts upon the truck.

This is the principle of the invention. That is to say, the truck is braked to a standstill. In addition, the impact of the body upon the end of the latter and the body's desire to prevent the body from rising with certain accidents.

Mr. George W. Ladd, engineer of the Grand Trunk Can. Dept., at a Point St. Charles, started to work on the device as he had been requested to do two years ago.

Mr. Ladd submitted his invention, which he describes as a centaur, to the President, Mr. Chamberlin, who was so pleased with it that he ordered the device to be added to all future equipment and at the present time it is in use on all the lines of the Grand Trunk Pacific passenger cars.

The weight of these cars varies from 115,000 pounds for a passenger coach while the weight of trucks varies from 10,000 to 12,000 pounds, and from 20,000 to 25,000 pounds for a six-wheel track.

Within the past month or so, the Board of Railway Commissioners, evidently impressed also with the dangerous character of the accident, has issued a circular to the Canadian Railways that at a future session it would inquire what steps should be taken to prevent such an accident.

From her childhood she has amused herself by exercising her peculiar taste for music and dancing and she has been said by the Grand Trunk about her device as the company was the first to use it. The Commissioner of the Grand Trunk officials feel no small pride that the device has been adopted by all of the Commissioners, but Grand Trunk officials are well aware of the progress of all the railroads of the world and are confident that the safety of passenger travel.

Ticking the Bobby A Dublin eccentric a short time ago entered a purveyor's shop and bought a gun.

Having paid for his purchase he went outside and stood by the door, saying that he would call back for it.

The man who owned the shop came into the shop till a policeman came in, and just as the man in blue was about to arrest him, he pulled out his gun and bolted.

The constable, who was greatly surprised at the sight, as he thought, and who had been a policeman for 20 years, called out to him, "What are you doing?"

He said, "I'm a socialist, as he realized the joke, it's his own man. He was quite at liberty to take it in any circumstances he chose."

BOWSER'S HENS.

He Almost Trades His House For a Chicken Farm.

BUT THE MRS. OBJECTS TO IT.

And After Much Discussion the Happy Family Decide to Settle Their Differences in the Divorce Court—Mr. Bowser Wins.

By M. QUAD.
[Copyright, 1913, by Associated Literary Press]

WHEN Mr. Bowser, a farmer and his wife, Mrs. Bowser, have this afternoon to look over the house?" said Mr. Bowser when he returned to dinner.

"Why, I saw a man come in and peering from the outside, but he didn't come in," replied Mrs. Bowser.

"Perhaps he hadn't the time, see the house?"

"Was Mrs. McAvendish thinking of building a house like ours?"

"I hardly think so."

"I used to peek and peer, eh?" "Perhaps."

When Mr. Bowser had a ready to plan it, "Farmer" McAvendish was suspicious among the neighborhood he would do so, but not until then, and it was no use to ask questions. It was half past six after all.

"Mrs. Bowser, on one or two occasions we have discussed the subject of starting a chicken farm."

"Yes."

"I had a chance to make a small fortune, but you discouraged me."

"I simply told you why you could not make a good living."

"You mean you jugged figures on me, while I was dead right in mine. I had about made an exchange with Farmer McAvendish. He takes this house, and I take his farm."

"I saw a man feeding around."

"And you start your chicken farm?"

"Exactly."

"When do we go?"

"Not until next spring. That will give me lots of time to read up on poultry."

"Well, I'm not going to say a word to discourage you."

Bowser's Bargain.

"You couldn't if you tried. I have been to the bank and made arrangements, and I know what I can earn on my poultry. I have also had a banker verify my figures. I can make thousands of dollars a year right off the reel."

"Then you have the figures with you?"

"Yes, I have. I suppose you'll have them with you, I suppose."

"I have."

"Well, you have the name of being a very good man, and I am glad to hear that you feel you have at last struck a big thing. The outdoor life will be a great thing for you. Will you be here to help us get started?"

"You want to pick them to pieces, as you did before."

"In that case, any pick a bank!"

"It's right to please?"

"That's so—that's so," said Mr. Bowser, with a sigh of relief. "Well, here they are, and you can look them over."

"After three months' study" Mrs. Bowser asked.

"What does Mr. McAvendish leave on the table?"

"War, nothing at all," was the reply.

"Not even a pig nor a farm implement?"

"I guess not. You see, I'm going to make a chicken farm of it, and why should he leave anything?"

"You will have to leave on horseback?"

"Oh, certainly."

"And a cow and a pig?"

"Yes."

"Are you going to buy all the feed for them and you have to boot or bale it?"

"Hah, of course," replied Mr. Bowser, looking a little startled.

"Then you must have a plow, a drag, hoes, shovels, seeds, a plow, a hired man. If you have a boy who will when it is time to cost a lot of money."

"There you go, finding fault already."

"It's simply a matter of business. There are a thousand things on hand, it involves several hundred dollars a year. You must see that."

Opposition.

"See that you are opposing me, as I have you might."

"No opposition at all," said Donald by way of reply.

"I see you're going to start out with 200 hens."

"Yes, and I figure on two eggs a day."

"If you get ten dozen a day it will be a big average. Very few have lay eggs day. You can put your income at $250 a day for a long time."

"Why, broilers will bring us in at least $10 a day," he shouted.

"I see, you are going in for incubators. Just count on raising half the chickens, and it takes time and weeks for a chick to become a broiler. Meanwhile you can figure on the gapes taking off about a fifth of your flock."

"I knew she would—I knew she would!" exclaimed Mr. Bowser as he went into the room.

"Mr. McAvendish has no farm and therefore has no fence or wire fencing. What are you going to do about 'em? You'll have to have a carpenter at work for that."

"Her! her! go on! Just hear her!"

"You can't possibly attend to the farm, and you can't raise the horses, and you can't have a boy at least. Have you figured on your wages and board?"

"Mr. Bowser could not utter a word in reply.

"You must have a one horse wagon to drive out from the market. What will you have a vehicle cost? How far will you go? The McAvendish farm is from a shipping point?"

"Four hundred miles, and I shriked, and I called him in again."

"I see," said Mrs. Bowser. "In the same calm and even way, "that you are buying a horse here?"

"Please tell me what has to part with at that price. You'll be lucky to get the scrubbiest kind at that figure."

"Uncle Billy has no horses in the office boy's barn."

The strong came in after his work was begun.

"I called her for twice; she went in on the run."

"Did she explain when she trembling began that a wreck at a crossing had halved her?"

"Did she smart at her? Did she snarl at her?"

"Did she show his impatience? You bet your sweet life!"

F. S.—"Pardon me, sir, may I speak to you?"

"The stink was not youthful, nor was she smiling.

MR. GROUCH.

He sat up with a groan, and he scolded his wife.

"She had that she was the 'bane of his life.'

He scolded the children and cursed them around.

He had a harsh and a blood-chilling laugh.

He scolded to cook because she'd slept.

And he scolded about everything that he could.

He scolded the driver upon the front seat, and he scolded and scolded concerning the horses.

He scolded the clerks and looked horrid cross eyes.

He scolded the entered in which he was born.

He scolded because there was dust on his chair.

He scolded because there were marks in the office boy's hair.

—Invaluable Comment.

Committee of Investigating selected him as their spokesman.

"Madam," said Professor Previews, the spokesman, offering her a magnificient chrysanthemum of rare and lovely color.

"I am a simple person myself," said he, "and I have no time to go to a toke of the day."

"I clasped the splendid blossom in my hand."

TRADING IN SECRETS

INTERNATIONAL SPYING IS A DANGEROUS OCCUPATION.

Elegant Tragedy In Sofia Recalls Similar Romantic Episodes—Women Spies Frequently Use Their Charms to Gain Information—Bereszka's Fate Was Slow Starvation in a Russian Prison.

According to a special correspondent at Sofia of the Petit Parisien, a woman of high social position in that capital and wife of a Bulgarian staff officer, was captured by the Turks trying to bring the Bulgarian mobilization plans to the Turkish authorities, and she was shot. A few years ago she was in love with an officer attached to the Turkish Legation at Sofia, but her parents refused to let her marry him, so she finally wedded a Bulgarian officer. Some time later the Turkish officer, now promoted to general, had a son, also a swashbuckler, and one day he said to her, "I have been ordered by my superior officer to bring the Bulgarian mobilization plans. If I do not succeed in that, then be pleased to go to distant command in Asia Minor, and we shall have no chance of seeing one another."

The woman handed him a day or two later a bundle of documents containing the secret mobilization plans, and in his pocket were found papers revealing the whole affair. He was condemned to death, but was reprieved to death. The young Bulgarian woman was arrested at Sofia, tried by a special court, and, being found guilty, was shot.

Military spies of the fair sex are common in Europe. In Germany, a short time back a woman named Peter was arrested at Kiel on suspicion of being a spy in the German service. She had taken the attention of many officers, and in his pocket were found papers revealing the whole affair. He was condemned to death, but was reprieved to death. The young Bulgarian woman was arrested at Sofia, tried by a special court, and, being found guilty, was shot.

This reminds us that som' years ago a young English lady attached to our Secret Service was told off to secure a place in certain arms of the French Army. She was sent to Paris, and there, in her pocket, were found papers revealing the whole affair. He was condemned to death, but was reprieved to death. The young Bulgarian woman was arrested at Sofia, tried by a special court, and, being found guilty, was shot.

At one time the Book of Books was being written in strong fortresses in Germany, and the residence of the officers became a victim to her charms. She had become the favorite of every officer who promptly fell in love with her. Her conscience, however, prompted her to tell the truth, and part she was playing, and finally she found herself in the prison cell of the victim. As a consequence she resigned her post and was led to the gallows.

It has been said that the German War Office have female spies in all parts of the world, and comparatively recent news has come to us that German nationality employed in hotels and cafés on the Eastern frontier of France, and in the Balkans, were trying to get to the fact that information had been placed before the French War Office by German agents in the employ of Germany.

Perhaps one of the cleverest of these German间諜 was a Russian subject. In 1887 he laid the explosive plans of a company directed by the Nitro-Works before the German Government.

He was a very daring fellow, but he allowed himself to make a number of mistakes. After communicating with the War Office, he gallantly sent a telegram to the German girl to return to her native country.

Another celebrated spy was the French Sophie Bereszka, who is described as the greatest military lunatic in history. Again and again he would charge into battle, shouting to his officers that he had killed scores of Prussian soldiers single-handed; but when he was asked to prove it, he would say, "I have only to kill even one." His duty was to go out scouting by night and when he returned to camp he would charge into camp a number of rifles which he boasted were the property of the Prussians.

As the Prussians became more and more numerous, his superiors became suspicious, and one night they sent a dozen men to search his tent. He was seen to march boldly into their Prussian camp and chat with their officers. When he returned to his French lines he was tax'd with being a spy, and when the Prussians prodded him, he said, "I was a traitor to his country and in the employ of the Russians, and an attempt was made to drown him and shoot him dead here and there."

The French Office has spies all over Europe, a good number being of the fair sex. The most notorious and daring of these was Sophie Bereszka, attached to the Russian Secret Political Police. Zinadeh Jourchenko, nee Goumenko, was a member of a wealthy family at Vitebsk, who was a famous Russian police spy. This woman made her first appearance in 1848, when she was twenty-three years of age.

CHOLERA SOURCES.

England Has Suffered Heavily in Time Gone By.

The terrible ravages cholera is making at the present time in Turkey and Russia may have carried off thousands at a time. As early as 793 A.D. there was a great cholera in England. It was a pestilence and again in 450 B.C. Rome suffered greatly. Athens was attacked by a pestilence which was probably cholera, and it is believed to have been caused by their enemies poisoning the water supplies.

In 1563 there was a great cholera in Italy, and in 1575 there were 10,000 deaths. In 1580 there were 34,000 people, and in 1664 Scotland lost 40,000. London was visited in a cholera in 1665, and in 1689 the Italian suffered severely in 1694.

The Oriental plagues occurred before the Black Death, and the Great Plague of 1665, account of the transience of beauty and art. They have allowed the glorious sun to illuminate the earth, and rains crops for the starving multitudes, but the plagues have come to us from the sea.

The Grain Growers while in session at Saskatoon last week passed some very important resolutions, amongst them being one asking the provincial legislature to amend the land titles so that mortgagors would have right to redeem lands seized under mortgage at any time within twelve months from the date of foreclosure by tendering the mortgages a sum equal to the payments in arrear together with all costs and interest; and that it also be amended to prevent the mortgagors from starting foreclosure proceedings before nine months from the due date of payment and that on foreclosure was threatened, mortgages be compelled to accept payment in full of the mortgage if tendered.

The Poverty club met at Mrs. C. Gardner's last Thursday.

Tenders are being asked for by the C.P.R. for the erection of a new station at Parkland.

A bunch of Cayleyites went to the High River rink one night last week, and report a pleasant time.

Mr. A. P. Ducommun is very low with pneumonia. His many friends are very anxious as to the outcome.

The carnival arranged for last Saturday night at the rink here did not come off. Old Sol got the upper hand of Jack Frost, causing a heavy thaw set in, making the rink a swimming bath instead of an ice rink. Many were greatly disappointed.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred W. Button, an old couple who lived a few miles north-west of Champion, were tried before Inspector Tucker in Champion on Wednesday, charged with being insane and dangerous at large. On the evidence produced they were committed to the R.N.W.M.P. barracks at Calgary to await the decision of the attorney general. It is altogether likely that they will be sent to the asylum at Ponoka.

Industrial Canada, the tariff baron's organ, publishes a yarn about 50,000 western farmers spending the winter in Ontario. No doubt quite a number of farmers have visited their old Ontario homes, but 2000 would be a large estimate. But the barons of privilege seem enraged that a farmer should have enough money saved to visit his aged parents. The manufacturers seem to think that a farmer has no right to anything more than a scanty living and that any above this should be plundered from him by the tariff.—Grain Growers Guide.

Missionaries from Cardston town representing the Mormon faith were set apart Sunday at the Alberta Stake conference for mission work in the city of Calgary. The announcement was made from the stand by the president of the church in Canada, and from the names read out it would seem that the best men in the church are to undertake the mission. It is said that Mormonism is getting quite a hold in Calgary, and in many of the smaller towns and districts around it. The object of the mission, the president said, was to proselyte.

Judging by the crowds and the expressions on the faces of morning shoppers at the Hudson Bay store this morning, the introduction of the cent as a medium of exchange in Lethbridge is being favorably received. It would probably be amiss to say that it is being accepted unanimously, but the far-sighted are bowing to the wishes of the majority and without any clamour the smallest coin of the realm will be thoroughly established here in a few weeks. It will take that time to get acquainted with the new specimen, but it seems that they are here to stay.—Herald.
